8. Consider and take possible action on Placement Agent Disclosure Policy.

Levy reviewed the revised Placement Agent Disclosure Policy and advised the disclosure requirement applies with regards to anyone within the statutory definition of a placement agent. In-house employees of external investment managers would only be considered "placement agents" if they are considered an "intermediary" within the statutory definition.

Regarding gifts and campaign contributions disclosures, the law does not place the requirement on the external managers, but rather on the placement agents. The Statute is also limited to elected officials while CCCERA's policy takes a broader approach to address contributions to staff, board members, and consultants.

AB 1743, if passed, would require placement agents to register as lobbyists. It would modify the definition of "placement agents" such that any In-house marketing staff working for external managers not spending at least 1/3 of their time managing assets will be considered a placement agent.

Leiderman advised the language on Page 4, item #4 is required by law and any material violations are determined by the Board. The Board may provide in its policy penalties that go beyond the statutory penalty for policy violations. Hally commented that most investment contracts allow the Board to terminate managers for any cause, but penalties stricken from the policy would cause issues with private equity contracts.

A policy must be adopted and implemented by June 30th, 2010 and the Board will revisit once AB1743 passes, if necessary.
